

Quality Assurance Route Chosen by First Aid Supplier		Level of Due Diligence Required
This is the option chosen by Norvic 1	Regulated First Aid Qualification accredited by an Ofqual/SQA recognised Awarding Organisation.	No due diligence required.
2	Training from the Voluntary Aid Societies (St John, Red Cross etc)	HSE guidance currently states that employers may wish to undertake some elements of due diligence ".
3	First Aid Association/body affiliation	Full due diligence should be carried out by the employer as "HSE is not in a position to verify the level of assurance" of this route.
4	Private/independent training provider with no accreditation/affiliation	Full due diligence should be carried out by the employer as "HSE is not in a position to verify the level of assurance" of this route.

Norvic Training (UK) Ltd is accredited with Quasafe Awards.

The proposed implementation date for the new guidance has now been revised to 1st October 2013.

Current HSE approvals will end the night before, when either legislative change will take effect or the HSE will put further arrangements in place.
